

New faces on REIQ board

Queensland's real estate industry body has elected its new board of directors for next year.

Incumbent Real Estate Institute of Queensland (REIQ) chairwoman Pamela Bennett has been re-elected for a two-year term.

Ms Bennett said three new directors had been elected to the nine person-board, including Place Estate Agents principal Paul Curtain and Bees Nees City Realty principal Robert Honeycombe.

"Paul and Robert are both committed to best practice and professionalism and will be very welcome additions to the board," Ms Bennett said.

"The board is also pleased to welcome back life member and former president Michael Davoren, whose extensive experience will also be a great asset."

Existing directors Deborah Duffy of LJ Hooker Marlin Coast and Jonathan O'Brien of CB Richard Ellis were re-elected for a further two-year term.

Non-member directors Pat Evatt and Brian Stewart have also been re-appointed for another term.
